2. President has no role to play in Perarivalan's plea : Supreme Court (May 5, 2022)

The Supreme Court has said that the Tamil Nadu Governor is bound to abide by the state cabinet's decision to release AG Perarivalan, who had spent more than 30 years in jail under life imprisonment for the assassination of former prime minister Rajiv Gandhi.

- The Supreme Court disagreed with the Central government's suggestion that the court should wait till the President took a call on mercy plea.
- The apex court, while rejecting the Governor's move to send the mercy petition to the President, said that if something is happening against the Constitution, then the eyes cannot be closed.
- The pertinent question was whether the Governor had the authority to send mercy petitions to the President.
- Under Article 161 of the Constitution, the Governor was bound by the aid and advice given by the Tamil Nadu Council of Ministers in September 2018.
- The Governor had no prima facie power to transfer the mercy petition to the President.
- Article 161 of the Constitution
- Article 161 of the Constitution empowers the Governor to pardon or reduce the sentence of any prisoner.
- The decision of the Governor will be subject to judicial review by the Constitutional Courts.
- What is Pardon?

A pardon is a government/executive decision that allows a person to be absolved of an offence for an alleged offence or other legal offence as if the offender had never committed the crime.

- Difference Between the Pardoning Powers of the President and the Governor

- The powers of the Governor are limited to offences against the law relating to the matter to which the executive power of the State extends.
- The governor cannot pardon the death sentence but the president can pardon the death sentence.
- The Governor cannot grant pardon, reprieve, suspension, remission or commutation in respect to punishment or sentence by a court-martial. But the President can do so.

3. Governor has forwarded NEET exemption Bill to Union Home Ministry (May 5, 2022)

Tamil Nadu Governor RN Ravi has sent a bill to the Union Home Ministry to abolish the NEET exam in the state. The Bill will be sent to Rashtrapati Bhavan by the Ministry of Home Affairs for the assent of the President.

- However, even before this, a bill was passed in the Tamil Nadu Legislative Assembly to free the state from the NEET examination. But it was returned by the Governor.
- The state of Tamil Nadu is witnessing a tussle between the elected government and the state governor over the question of approving the National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test (NEET) Bill passed by the state assembly.

- Position of Governor in Constitutional system of India

- The Governor is appointed by the President, which means the central government.
- Although Article 154(1) of the Constitution vests the executive power of the State in the Governor, he is required to exercise that power according to the Constitution.
- The Governor can act only on the aid and advice of the Council of Ministers.
- The Governor is only the constitutional head of the state and the executive power of the state is exercised by the Council of Ministers.

- The options before the Governor in the matter of giving assent to a Bill

- The assent of the Governor or the President is necessary for a bill to become a law.
- Article 200 of the Constitution provides for four alternatives for a Governor when a Bill passed by the legislature-

1. The Governor can give his assent straightaway.
2. The Governor can withhold his assent.
3. He may also reserve it for the consideration of the President.

He may return the Bill to the legislature with the request that it may reconsider the Bill or
4. any particular provision of the Bill.

- However, if the legislature re-passes the bill without accepting any of the amendments suggested by the governor, he is constitutionally bound to assent to the bill.

4. The Reserve Bank of India has increased the cash reserve ratio (CRR) for banks (May 4, 2022)

The Reserve Bank of India has increased the cash reserve ratio (CRR) for banks by 0.50 percent to 4.5 percent.

- On May 4, 2022, in the meeting of the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the Reserve Bank of India, Reserve Bank Governor Shaktikant Das announced an increase in the CRR.
- In the meeting of the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC), it was decided to increase the repo rate by 0.40 percent to 4.4 percent.
- The new rates will be applicable from May 21.
- What is Cash Reserve Ratio (CRR)?
- CRR refers to the bank deposits that banks need to keep with the central bank in cash.
- What is the repo rate?
- Repo rate is the rate at which the central bank of a country (RBI in India's case) lends money to commercial banks when they are short of funds. Here the central bank buys securities.
- What will be the effect of the hike in repo rate?
- The increase in the repo rate by the RBI will increase the EMI of other loans like home and car loans.
- An increase in the repo rate can help bring down inflation. The Reserve Bank believes that due to the costlier interest rate, the inflation rate will be controlled.
- The impact of increasing the repo rate will also affect the savings bank account and FD. Banks can increase the interest rate on your savings account and fixed deposits.
